important questions....

Worried you could catch a harmful sexually transmitted infection (STI) and/or possibly become pregnant?

Learn how saying no can help shape the direction of your future.

Would you consider saying no to being sexually active i.e. not having sex until you're married?

A teenage pregnancy can change your life in more ways than one.

Life is precious, yours is extremely valuable.
Would you let 10 minutes of passion dictate your future?

Do you want to stay 100% safe? Say NO to sexual intercourse.

Sexual activity is not just sexual intercourse.
It includes cuddling, deep kissing, fondling/
stroking, mutual masturbation and oral sex.

100% protection
say NO

you might save a life....

Your own!

important considerations....

Love does not demand a sexual relationship.

True love respects, cares and waits for a sexual relationship within marriage.

Not everybody's doing it! More and more young people are learning there's power in waiting.

Be in control of your life and live free of all the pressures created by being sexually active.

Say NO, you could be rescuing a life, yours or a baby's.

Abortion is not a good solution to teenage pregnancy. It is the beginning of more complications, pain and trauma.

important facts....

A sexually transmitted infection (STI) is an infection that can be caught during sexual activity (oral, vaginal or anal).

There are lots of STIs. Some cause mild genital irritation like pubic lice (crabs). Other infections like genital herpes stay in your body for life. If left untreated, infections such as chlamydia might result in you not being able to have children.

Young people can contract the HIV virus.

People with HIV can develop AIDS related illnesses and die.
